Very few women buy life insurance because they are so busy with their families or so lost in their jobs that they do not have time to think about life insurance. This is really sad because it is equally important for them to get insured. They should not leave it to their husbands to buy life insurance; instead they should get it themselves. A woman needs insurance so that her kids can have a secure future. Even if you do not have children, insurance is a good idea because it will make sure that you leave no debts behind you.

A life insurance can pay for household expenses, mortgages, education. It can also supplement savings. No women will like to leave her family in trouble and with the insurance she can be sure that her family won't have to take drastic measures to meet the expenses. That is why a woman must buy insurance. Though life insurance is almost a necessity, yet one in four American families do not have insurance.

There's no particular time which is fit for a woman to buy insurance. Life insurance will provide you a safety net if you are a young married woman with children and one of the earning spouses was to die. It is most likely that you have high debts and low savings at this stage of life and this make life insurance all the more important. The surviving spouse can use the money to pay the bills and support the child.

It is extremely important for you to have life insurance if you are a single mom with young children. Your children are totally dependent on you and their future depends on you. In case anything happens to you, the insured money will help them to carry on their education. It will support them till they become big enough to take care of themselves.

If you are a married woman with children in college, life insurance can help you to pay for your child's education. In absence of life insurance, if one spouse dies, the other is forced to withdraw from retirement savings. So you must have a life insurance which will help you to pay for college expenses.

Being a woman doesn't mean that you don't need insurance. It is as important for you as it is for your husband. You love your kids and want a secure future for them and for this you need insurance!{mosgoogle left}
